What We Are Learning:

Reading: In reading we will focus on reading and learning about our Veterans so that children are aware why we have next Monday off from school. We will also look at some NF text structure and there will be a Thanksgiving related activity we will create to display.

Language Arts: There will not be a spelling list this week because of the short week. I plan on sending home our next spelling list on Thursday or Friday so that children can begin practicing their spelling words for next week (since it is also a short week.) In grammar we will work on common and proper nouns. Our writing will be blended with reading and children will be writing about what they are thankful for.

Math: We will work on metric volume (liters, milliliters) this week.

Science: We are still working on adaptations.

Soc: We will learn about communities.

At Home:

I hear that we may get some measurable snow Thursday night into Friday morning. Please have your child wear a winter coat, gloves, hat, etc. on these cold and wet days.

From the Teacher:

I want to thank you all for coming in for Parent-Teacher conferences. I enjoyed talking with all of you about your children. I am so blessed to have an incredible group of students to work with and I can tell its directly related to the support and love you give your child at home. Thank you again!!!

We have a short week, so homework will be light. If your child wears pajamas on Friday, please make sure they also have a pair of shoes to wear (other than slippers). They can always change into their slippers once they are at school.
